Face it. Respect equals results.

Talent, smarts and hard work are not enough. People make up their minds in the first few minutes whether they respect your leadership, knowledge, skills and ability to get things done.

If you pass "The Respect Test," they listen to you, act on your advice, give you promotions, fund your projects, say yes and follow your lead. If you don't pass, they won't support you, promote you, perform for you, invest in you, hire you or recommend you...even when you deserve it.

Get fresh insights into how to command the respect you deserve - so you can get the results you need. These techniques work in person, on the phone, online, in halls and in virtual meetings.
